4.3.5 Lifelong learning access policy

4.3.5 Lifelong learning access policy

Even though Misr University for Science and Technology (MUST) was established 25 years ago, it still follows founder's mission of serving the community and its residents. The university always puts society on the top of its priorities, that way the university remains the least in tuition fees among all the private universities in Egypt to enable a large sector of students to fulfil their educational dreams regardless of ethnicity, religion, disability, immigration status or gender. The admission policy for any educational activity on campus is clear that Misr University for Science and Technology (MUST) admits qualified students regardless of their race, color, religion, gender or national origin, and the university follows the rules and regulations of admission set forth by the Supreme Council of Universities and the Private Universities Council.
